

ADMIRAL DEWEY, GEN. HARRISON WITH HIS BABY, HAMILTON LEWIS, MRS. NORDICA AND EAMES TALK OF THE JOURNAL.

Dewey Leaving His Carriage at the Cambridge.

Dewey, the History Maker, Comes to New York Again, This Time a-Courting and Not to the Boom of Cannon.

Admiral Dewey came quietly to town yesterday. His arrival was unheralded, but when the time he left the train at Jersey City, he was greeted by a man, woman or child, who within a few minutes failed to recognize a man who turned New York upside down last month ago.

The Admiral hinted that he was not here "business." He even went further and mildly said: "You know I am no longer your master." This admission came as he entered the Cambridge Hotel, where his niece, Mrs. Hazen, is staying. The real master of the fourth Admiral of the United States Navy received his card a few minutes later.

The Admiral arrived on the Washington Express, which reached Jersey City at 2:30 o'clock. He was a passenger in the parlor car. President John R. Proctor, of the Civil Service Commission, was his only companion. No one met him at the Jersey City station.

Upon alighting from the train Admiral Dewey and Mr. Proctor started for the Twenty-third street ferryboat. Passing through the corridors of the station, the Admiral espied two sailors of the Olympia, wearing uniforms and Olympia caps, standing at a gate waiting for a train. He took off his hat and bowed to them very cordially, and said to President Proctor: "They are two of my boys. I am always glad to see them."

Admiral Dewey was coy when it came to expressing his purpose in coming to town. "I am not on official business," he explained.

When asked where he expected to stay while in the city, he winked and said: "At the Astor House." Then turning to Mr. Proctor he remarked, bubbling with joyful laughter: "Isn't something of a liar myself when I want to be?"

He Meets an Old Sailor.
The Admiral wore a black frock coat, dark checked trousers, a heavy black overcoat and a beaver hat. He had a smile for every one who noticed him. He smiled many times.

The Admiral and Mr. Proctor stood on the front upper deck of the boat, while crossing the river. Admiral Dewey's attention was called at this time to an interesting appearing in politics. Neither was he the first authoritative statement from him of his determination not to allow himself to be considered for the Presidency.

"Why, I told the Journal this at Manila," said Admiral Dewey after he had read the interview.

The paper publishing this interview mentioned my name for the Presidency," said the Admiral, modestly. "I told one of my friends that such talk was making me ridiculous."

"I have never wanted to be President. I would not under any circumstances be a candidate for office. When the subject was first broached after the battle of Manila I made up my mind I would not think of such a proposition. I have since my mind is determined upon the point mentioned at all."

"I do not think General Grant added to his fame by becoming President. He had a great training in politics. Neither have I had. Neither have any political ambitions. I would not, therefore, run for the Presidency upon any consideration."

Can't "Save" the Country.
The talk about his possibly being able to save the country is of no weight. If a country ever gets so poor in Presidential material that it will have to depend upon one man to save the nation, we will indeed be in a pitiable condition.

"I suppose it can be safely said, Admiral," interposed Mr. Proctor at this point, "that you are satisfied to rest upon the laurels you have already won?"

"Well," replied the Admiral, "I have never said anything about being discontented."

As soon as he had taken his station on the ferryboat the passengers began gathering around Dewey. One of these, an old man, came forward and offered his hand to the Admiral, introducing himself as Mr. Quinn, once an ordinary seaman on a ship upon which Dewey served many years ago as a subordinate officer.

"I do not exactly place you," said the Admiral in a tone of gracious kindness, "but I remember your captain very well. How has the world gone with you since then, Mr. Quinn?"

"Prettily well," responded the old sailor.

"Well, I am glad indeed to hear it," said Dewey.

Quinn told the Admiral he had been greatly pleased at his success at Manila Dewey smilingly said:

"It didn't surprise you, did it, Quinn?"

President Proctor and the Admiral parted when they reached the New York side of the river. Dewey summoned a cab and directed the driver to take him to the Cambridge Hotel, Thirty-third street and Fifth avenue. Upon his arrival at the hotel he went to the second floor, where a suite had been engaged for him. He did not register.

Dewey Calls on the Only Person to Whom He Ever "Captivated."
Mrs. Hazen, fiancée of Admiral Dewey, leaped herself to all visitors yesterday except the man of her choice—the gallant Admiral himself. The news of his coming checked out in some way, but no one saw the happy bride-elect and her aged mother, Mrs. McLoud, knew at what hour he was due to arrive.

About 10 o'clock Mrs. Hazen, heavily veiled, accompanied by her mother, stepped lightly through the hotel office and entered a carriage in waiting at the door. They were driven up Fifth avenue, and after attending the morning services at the cathedral, Mrs. Hazen is a devout Catholic and a prominent church member in Washington.

After the services they returned to the General Harrison, Baby at Side, Talks of World's Affairs.

The former President, who arrived on the St. Paul yesterday, punctuated his discussion of international topics by talking fondly to his child.

Former President Harrison, Back on the St. Paul, Declares That the Venezuelan Verdict Is Momentous to American People.

BENJAMIN HARRISON, once President of the United States, his wife, his baby and the baby's nurse, returned to this country on the St. Paul yesterday. He went abroad to plead the case of Venezuela in the boundary controversy before the arbitration tribunal in Paris, and that was the first subject on which he spoke when the reporters went aboard the steamship at Quarantine.

Baby Harrison, chubby, golden-haired, blue-eyed and two and a half years old, hung on to one leg of her distinguished father during the interview.

"The verdict of the Venezuelan Commission was a compromise," said the ex-President. "If the American people have read the cable dispatches in the newspapers they must be familiar with the verdict and what led up to it. They should have read every line, for the proceedings were most important; momentous, in fact. They marked—(Papa's little girl mustn't tattle) papa's shoe lace. Look at the pretty slippers and the big water, like papa's good little lamb."

"Not in war the police answer given to everybody in the clerk."

Mrs. Hazen, her mother, Admiral Dewey and General and Mrs. Nicol Ludlow dined together in the evening in the imperial suite.

Cardinal Gibbons Selected to Wed Admiral Dewey and Mrs. Hazen.
Washington, Nov. 5.—It is learned from a warm personal friend and confidant of Mrs. Hazen that the marriage with Admiral Dewey will take place at the residence of Mrs. McLean, on Farragut square. Altogether it will be a quiet home affair, with only intimate friends and members of the family present.

The President and Mrs. McKinley will be invited, and the question as to whether Cardinal Gibbons, the question as to whether the Cardinal or Archbishop Keane should be selected has been one of much discussion in the family. The Archbishop is an old friend of the family, and the Cardinal is a friend of the Cardinal.

J. HAM. LEWIS FORESEES DIRE WARS.
He Returns from England Without the $25,000,000 He Went After.

THERE was plenty of wind on the ocean when the St. Paul, of the American line, steamed across. She was wafted into port with half a gale behind her—attacked doubtless by the curly, pink whiskers of James Hamilton Lewis, former Congressman from the State of Washington.

Mr. Lewis, a picturesque person of great magnetism, went to England as the representative of the miners in the Atlin district in Alaska, who claim $25,000,000 which they say John Bull has taken from them by enforcing the rule that only British subjects may hold property there. Mr. Lewis did not return with the money, but he had the consent of Sir Louis Davies, the Canadian representative, to lay the claim before the Joint High Commission, after they have been submitted to the State Department.

Mr. Lewis Is Interviewed.
"The Foreign Office in London," said Mr. Lewis, "has authorized the Canadian representatives to yield up the towns of Skagway and Dyea, together with the claims to that portion of Alaska including much of the gold belt, in return for Pyramid harbor, leaving the rest of the disputed territory to be arbitrated upon."

"While England professes to want only a free port for commercial purposes, what she really wants is a port from which she may send goods to the Orient and Alaska to undersea, as well as to use for military purposes. She is expecting complications with Russia and perhaps with the United States."

"England is anxious for us to extend our colonies and for us to have friction with Germany, so that an Anglo-American alliance may be forced upon us."

"The Administration will swap Pyramid harbor for Skagway and Dyea, provided it does not find out the strategic danger of the claim. We should not yield up any portion of our northwest border. I regard such a cession as dangerous to our peace. The Pacific coast will oppose it and so will the Atlantic coast."

CUBAN CONVICTS RESENT STRIPES AND SHEARS.
Santiago Prisoners Rebel and Force Is Used to Carry Out the Order to Carry.

CUPID GETS INTO THIS BIBLE CLASS.
Result Is That Two Other Members Stand Up and Are Married.

CHURCH FAIR ROW MADE HER INSANE.
Mrs Emma Hartley Left Meeting of the Men Who Off a Committee, Grew Desperate.

GRIGGS VISITS HIS OLD CHUM, HOBART.
There is no doubt now that Mr. Hobart is now simply awaiting death, not in distress or unconsciousness, but in a full realization of his condition.

CHINAMAN JUMPED OFF A STREET CAR TO HIS DEATH.
He Lay in a Laundry for Hours Dying, but His Friends Sent for No Help.

TO VOTERS.
The Rapid Transit Commission has recommended that the Commissioners who framed the Greater New York charter, and has been adopted by two Legislatures. It provides that the debts of the counties now included in this city shall not be reckoned as a part of the city debt for the purpose of assessing borrowing capacity, thus doing justice to this municipality by putting it on the same footing with all other cities in the State.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Society Folk Taking Great Interest in the Affair.

MODISTES MAKING HORSE SHOW GOWNS.
The Horse Show will open one week from today. Women are working their dressmakers far into the night to produce to-gets for the first day that will dazzle the crowd.

THOUGHT HER HUSBAND'S LOVE MIGHT COOL AND TOOK CARBOLIC ACID.
Attired in the dress in which she was married six weeks ago, a wreath of faded orange blossoms upon her head, Christina Durr lay down and poisoned herself yesterday because she feared she could not keep her husband's love.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Christina was twenty-four years old and lived with her husband, Charles, one year her junior, at No. 658 East Thirty-ninth street, Flatbush. She was the adopted daughter of Charles Schuler, of No. 836 East Thirty-fifth street.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
"I am happily married," she said yesterday to her mother by adoption, "but I am jealous. I am afraid some day Charles may love another girl."

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Christina seemed to let the matter pass from her mind. She went home at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At 4:30 a family on the floor below heard her singing blithely over her household work.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Her husband returned at 5 o'clock, and not seeing his wife at the door to greet him thought she was at her mother's and sat reading his paper. Suddenly a great fear came upon him and he ran into her bedroom.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
His bride was lying on the bed pale and motionless. Doctors, who came in, said she was dead, and that she took carbolic acid.

J.J. Hamilton Lewis, Miners' Friend.

colonies and for us to have friction with Germany, so that an Anglo-American alliance may be forced upon us."

"The Administration will swap Pyramid harbor for Skagway and Dyea, provided it does not find out the strategic danger of the claim. We should not yield up any portion of our northwest border. I regard such a cession as dangerous to our peace. The Pacific coast will oppose it and so will the Atlantic coast."

CUBAN CONVICTS RESENT STRIPES AND SHEARS.
Santiago Prisoners Rebel and Force Is Used to Carry Out the Order to Carry.

CUPID GETS INTO THIS BIBLE CLASS.
Result Is That Two Other Members Stand Up and Are Married.

CHURCH FAIR ROW MADE HER INSANE.
Mrs Emma Hartley Left Meeting of the Men Who Off a Committee, Grew Desperate.

GRIGGS VISITS HIS OLD CHUM, HOBART.
There is no doubt now that Mr. Hobart is now simply awaiting death, not in distress or unconsciousness, but in a full realization of his condition.

CHINAMAN JUMPED OFF A STREET CAR TO HIS DEATH.
He Lay in a Laundry for Hours Dying, but His Friends Sent for No Help.

TO VOTERS.
The Rapid Transit Commission has recommended that the Commissioners who framed the Greater New York charter, and has been adopted by two Legislatures. It provides that the debts of the counties now included in this city shall not be reckoned as a part of the city debt for the purpose of assessing borrowing capacity, thus doing justice to this municipality by putting it on the same footing with all other cities in the State.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Society Folk Taking Great Interest in the Affair.

MODISTES MAKING HORSE SHOW GOWNS.
The Horse Show will open one week from today. Women are working their dressmakers far into the night to produce to-gets for the first day that will dazzle the crowd.

THOUGHT HER HUSBAND'S LOVE MIGHT COOL AND TOOK CARBOLIC ACID.
Attired in the dress in which she was married six weeks ago, a wreath of faded orange blossoms upon her head, Christina Durr lay down and poisoned herself yesterday because she feared she could not keep her husband's love.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Christina was twenty-four years old and lived with her husband, Charles, one year her junior, at No. 658 East Thirty-ninth street, Flatbush. She was the adopted daughter of Charles Schuler, of No. 836 East Thirty-fifth street.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
"I am happily married," she said yesterday to her mother by adoption, "but I am jealous. I am afraid some day Charles may love another girl."

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Christina seemed to let the matter pass from her mind. She went home at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At 4:30 a family on the floor below heard her singing blithely over her household work.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Her husband returned at 5 o'clock, and not seeing his wife at the door to greet him thought she was at her mother's and sat reading his paper. Suddenly a great fear came upon him and he ran into her bedroom.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
His bride was lying on the bed pale and motionless. Doctors, who came in, said she was dead, and that she took carbolic acid.

Nordica and Eames Back for the Opera Season.

The famous singers have rested abroad during the Summer, and tell about their plans for the Winter.

Mmes. Nordica and Eames, After Refreshing Vacations Abroad, Talk of Parts They Will Sing the Coming Season Here.

LILLIAN NORDICA and Emma Eames are in America again. Both arrived in New York yesterday on the American line steamer St. Paul.

They will sing in the opera company of which Maurice Grau is the director. Their first appearance will be in Chicago on November 13. Later they will sing the leading roles during the season at the Metropolitan Opera House. Both said they were in the voice.

"No new operas or new roles to announce just now," said Mme. Nordica. "I believe in the old stand-bys, the operas that audiences have always liked and always will. Nothing in the world of music has ever surpassed Wagner's operas. They are growing more and more popular everywhere, and I prefer to sing in Wagnerian roles than in any others."

"The last few months I spent in the Black Forest of Germany, in the mountains, feeding lumps of sugar to the big German horses and leading an absolutely out-of-door life."

"I did pay a visit to Mme. Wagner at Luzerne, where I rehearsed the part of Siegmund. It's a new role for me, but the score is superb. I may sing it during the season, although of that I am not sure."

Mme. Eames said: "I shall sing Aida first. I understand Mr. Grau has arranged for the opera's production on a scale that will far surpass any that has ever been given in this country before."

"In the 'Maze of Fate,' which will be the first of the Mozart cycle operas, I shall take the leading part of Paulina. In the 'Nozze di Figaro' I shall sing the role of the Countess."

During the few days in which Mrs. Eames will be in New York before starting for the West she will be the guest of Miss Collier and Miss De Forest, No. 27 East Seventy-second street.

MODISTES MAKING HORSE SHOW GOWNS.

The Horse Show will open one week from today. Women are working their dressmakers far into the night to produce to-gets for the first day that will dazzle the crowd.

The main point about this year's Horse Show will be the appearance in prominent positions of society folk who have not heretofore had much to do with the event. Among the new names are those of Irving Brokaw, T. W. Lawson, F. W. Sturgis, E. P. Brownell, T. M. Turner, G. F. Woodman, Miss L. A. Benedict, Walter Watson, Jr., Mrs. B. F. Fuller, Mrs. H. C. Grosvenor, Miss James, F. C. Knox, Ira Kip and Miss Mary Allen Van Nest.

There will be five exhibits in four-in-hands and tandems. One of the closest contests is expected in the roadster class. The $10,000 beauties, West and B. C., belonging to P. C. Knox, of Pittsburgh, will be pitted against Colonel Kip's Emolita and Water Maid, H. Stotesbury's Altamont and Medio, and Hickenor & Newgrass's Bella Bells and Willet.

Many women will ride in the saddle horse classes. The entries include Miss Pauline's Senator, Mrs. John Gerken's Vines, W. Steele's Mariella, Mrs. Jacques Bellin's Haynes, Mrs. H. S. Rubin's Albelia, Miss Madison Hallway's Consolation, A. F. H. Gladwin's Sun King, Mrs. F. W. Sturgis's Brinswood Boy, Mrs. J. Forbes Porter's Ruby, Mrs. W. E. Kottman's Condo, Mrs. Gladys Lawson's Victory, Mrs. H. H. Good's Post Horn, and Mrs. L. M. Hazlett's Milo.

There also is a big entry of hunters and jumpers, most of them from out-of-town riders. A thing of note is noticeable in the number of entries for the hackney class.

The sale of boxes this year brought $13,540. Last year the sum realized was $13,850. The highest price paid for a box this year is $450.

CHINAMAN JUMPED OFF A STREET CAR TO HIS DEATH.

He Lay in a Laundry for Hours Dying, but His Friends Sent for No Help.

Chu Niu, a Chinaman, of No. 30 Mott street, who worked at the laundry at No. 2124 Eighth avenue, jumped off an Eighth avenue car in front of the laundry yesterday. The Chinaman fell on his head.

Dr. Bergmann, of No. 1845 Seventh avenue, was called, and he found Chu Niu lying on a mass of clothes with a dozen ironing boards, and gazing at him stolidly. The physician advised that the man be sent to a hospital. Nothing was done, and several hours later the Chinaman was found dead.

TO VOTERS.
The Rapid Transit Commission has recommended that the Commissioners who framed the Greater New York charter, and has been adopted by two Legislatures. It provides that the debts of the counties now included in this city shall not be reckoned as a part of the city debt for the purpose of assessing borrowing capacity, thus doing justice to this municipality by putting it on the same footing with all other cities in the State.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Society Folk Taking Great Interest in the Affair.

MODISTES MAKING HORSE SHOW GOWNS.
The Horse Show will open one week from today. Women are working their dressmakers far into the night to produce to-gets for the first day that will dazzle the crowd.

THOUGHT HER HUSBAND'S LOVE MIGHT COOL AND TOOK CARBOLIC ACID.
Attired in the dress in which she was married six weeks ago, a wreath of faded orange blossoms upon her head, Christina Durr lay down and poisoned herself yesterday because she feared she could not keep her husband's love.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Christina was twenty-four years old and lived with her husband, Charles, one year her junior, at No. 658 East Thirty-ninth street, Flatbush. She was the adopted daughter of Charles Schuler, of No. 836 East Thirty-fifth street.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
"I am happily married," she said yesterday to her mother by adoption, "but I am jealous. I am afraid some day Charles may love another girl."

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Christina seemed to let the matter pass from her mind. She went home at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At 4:30 a family on the floor below heard her singing blithely over her household work.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
Her husband returned at 5 o'clock, and not seeing his wife at the door to greet him thought she was at her mother's and sat reading his paper. Suddenly a great fear came upon him and he ran into her bedroom.

BRIDE A SUICIDE IN WEDDING GOWN.
His bride was lying on the bed pale and motionless. Doctors, who came in, said she was dead, and that she took carbolic acid.